Minden man recovering from bike accident

by SUE TIFFIN
Times Staff

Larry Reynolds wanted to mark the sale of his friend's hunting camp by enjoying one more dirt bike ride with his friends on the property.

But on May 27, the ride became memorable for an altogether different reason when Larry moved to pass a fellow rider, hit a bump, missed a corner and crashed.

Larry suffered a broken shoulder, wrist, pelvis, neck and multiple rib fractures in the accident, and was rushed from the Miskwabi Lake area to Haliburton and Lindsay hospitals before being transferred to St. Mike's in Toronto. "Everyone's saying how surprised they are he's able to move, because of where he broke his neck," said Brooke Reid-Reynolds, his wife. "It was a pretty intense accident."

Larry wasn't an experienced rider, and was on a bike he had purchased just a few weeks prior to the crash, but he had been on dirt bikes and four wheelers multiple times – his brother-in-law is national snowcross champion and motocross rider Izac Reid. Larry was wearing a helmet and proper equipment that included dirt bike boots. Brooke said he might have added broken legs to his injuries if not for them.

"He's being super positive," said Brooke.

Farmers' market makes a move

by SUE TIFFIN
Times Staff

Two of the county farmers' markets are in full swing, and the third is prepared to open in a new place with a new name.

The Carnarvon market is being renamed as the Stanhope market to reflect its move from the intersection of highways 35 and 118 in Carnarvon, to the Stanhope Community Centre grounds at 1095 North Shore Road. The market has been held in the lot next to what is now Rhubarb Restaurant in Carnarvon since its opening in summer 2010. That lot is for sale and no longer available, and market manager Amanda Rico said a lack of parking forced the move. She is enthusiastic about the change.

"All the vendors were really positive about the new location because it's a beautiful facility," said Rico. "It has everything the vendors need – room, rest area, playground for the kids, ample parking, so facility-wise it's fantastic. We couldn't ask for a better spot."

Rico said signs up on market day would redirect shoppers from the former space to the new spot.

Stanhope location provides room for market to grow

"That's going to be the permanent location, and that market's not going anywhere," she said. "It's staying there for the whole season. It'll be there next year. That's going to be its new roots, its new grounds."

Rico said the new space would be safer without shoppers having to cross the highway to get to the market.

"Stanhope also gives us the option to grow," she said. "Because there's more space, more vendors can be there. We're not all crammed in and it doesn't limit us. Stanhope gives us the possibility of growing, which we didn't have before."

The Minden market, which has been open since May 20, moved from the temporary spot it has held at the Minden Fairgrounds back to its space at the site of the former Pritchard House next to the municipal building parking lot on June 3. The market was moved to the fairgrounds due to flooding in the downtown area in May.

"It's a little bit of work because you have to remap everything out," said Rico. "But the response to the fairgrounds was fantastic, and we got people up there when the bridge was closed. The market has a really solid, loyal following. It goes where it has to go and everyone follows."

The Haliburton market opened on May 23 and remains at Head Lake Park. "Haliburton hasn't moved and hopefully it never will," laughed Rico.

The Stanhope market opens June 16 with a celebration that includes gift baskets and giveaways. A ribbon cutting ceremony will take place at 11:45 a.m. It's open from 12 to 4 p.m. every Friday. The Minden market is open on Saturdays from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. The Haliburton market is open 12 to 4 p.m. on Tuesdays. All three markets are open until the first week of October.

Because there's more space, more vendors can be there.

Reynolds undergoing rehabilitation in Lindsay

"We just have to take it day by day."

Reynolds is currently able to walk a few steps at a time, but experiences pain with even minor movement. At press time, he had been transferred back to Lindsay hospital for ongoing rehabilitation.

Besides rehab, a major concern for the couple is figuring out how to move forward with Larry's lack of mobility. Their house is not accessible for a wheelchair, and they depend on two incomes. Larry had just started his second summer with D&K Contracting, and Brooke had just started a full-time position at Curry Chevrolet Buick GMC Ltd. The couple, who were married last August, have been together nine years and have a two-year-old daughter.

"I've never had to go without him. He's never not worked. This is all new," said Brooke. "And being so young and not having work is a big thing in Haliburton."

Brooke credited the couple's employers for their patience and support following Larry's accident.

"They're being really good, they understand what's going on," said Brooke. "We both have really easygoing bosses, and really supportive family and friends, which is what we need right now."

The Reynolds are grateful for the help and support from their family and friends, and are particularly thankful to the bikers who stopped to help at the scene of the accident. One was a paramedic that noted it was essential Reynolds not be moved – advice that might have helped prevent further injury.

A GoFundMe has been set up by family relative Heather Allen to help support the Reynolds family during Larry's rehabilitation. Almost $2,000 has been raised in a week. Donations can be made at www.gofundme.com/larry-reynolds-medical-bills.

The Red Cross closed the centre on Sunday, June 4 after conducting follow up, door-to-door visits with flood-affected residents in the preceding days.

The Red Cross Outreach Group will distribute approved cash cards at a date and time yet to be determined.

A little lemonade goes a long way

by CHAD INGRAM
Times Staff

John Van Berlo will be entering the Enbridge Ride to Conquer Cancer, thanks in part to his young entrepreneurial daughter.

The ride, which will take place on June 10 and 11, requires that participants raise an entry fee of at least $2,500.

"I was short of the $2,500 that is the minimum to be raised," Van Berlo told the Times.

So Van Berlo, who lives in Orillia, went to the local Zehrs, getting permission to set up a fundraising station outside the store.

On Saturday, May 27, he was there with his training bike and his daughter, seven-year-old Ruby Skye, who lives in Haliburton County, was there with her lemonade stand.

"She made her own lemonade stand and we were able to set it up," Van Berlo said. Ruby sold some 12 litres of the stuff.

"She was very vocal," Van Berlo said. "Together, we were able to exceed the minimum donation amount of $2,500 to be able to participate in the ride."

Van Berlo first did the ride a number of years ago.

He is riding as part of Team Lindsay, a team named for a friend of his who is again fighting cancer.

"She was diagnosed with a brain tumour in 2010," Van Berlo explains. He was also diagnosed with a brain tumour around the same time. However, while his turned out to be benign, Lindsay's was not.

"I was right around people who were hearing not so good news," Van Berlo says, recalling his experience at the time.

Anyone wishing to make a donation for Van Berlo's ride can check out his fundraising page at http://www.conquercancer.ca/site/TR/Ride/Toronto2017?px=4181547&pg=personal&fr_id=1581

Kinmount couple raising money for angiosarcoma research

by DARREN LUM
Times Staff

Sometimes you need superheroes to bring people together.

Kinmount residents Robert and Melissa Moody and Regan Correia are becoming Team Angiosarcoma Avengers to compete at the Spartan Sprint Race on Friday, Sept. 8 at Canadian Forces Base, Borden.

Motivated by Robert's father, Bob Moody, 64, who was diagnosed this past January with angiosarcoma, the veterans are using the race to show their support for him.

Angiosarcoma is a rare aggressive cancer of the inner lining of the blood vessels. It accounts for less than one per cent of adult malignancies.

Money raised goes to Angiosarcoma Awareness Inc., dedicated to researching a cure for the disease and supporting those with it.

Initially, Melissa wanted to raise money for Bob, but he refused, saying his treatments were covered. The couple felt like they needed to do something, she said.

"Rob and I aren't the [type of] people to sit around and worry about it," Melissa said.

Tackling their first Spartan event – a challenging obstacle course race – was a start.

Angiosarcoma Awareness Inc. is an organization primarily run by volunteers, so the money goes where it is needed, she said.

"It's very inspiring to see how far they've come and that they're always making headway. There really isn't enough known, especially in Canada, there really isn't anything," she said.

The organization was founded by two women, Lauren Ryan and Dr. Corrie Painter, who both had angiosarcoma of the breast. Ryan has since died from the cancer and Painter continues to work to raise awareness and to find a cure.

The Moodys' GoFundMe has raised $475 of the $5,000 goal as of press time.

Melissa sees Angiosarcoma Awareness Inc. as a hope for everyone who is afflicted with this disease.

Unlike some tumours, she said, which can be taken out, the biggest issue is this cancer can travel to any organ and area in the body such as the skin, breast, liver, spleen and deep tissue, making it difficult to eradicate with surgery.

The Moodys first learned Bob had cancer just before Christmas.

A lesion on his nose and recurring lesions on his cheeks prompted a biopsy, which revealed angiosarcoma.

So far, Bob has had chemotherapy to kill as much of the cancer as possible. These treatments have helped him feel better, but worsened the pre-existing arthritis in his joints, led to foot pain and numbness and thinning hair. Without the cancer visible, radiation is not an option and chemotherapy is the only treatment, Melissa said.

She said her father-in-law has not let the cancer slow him down too much despite everything.

He continues to work full time as a property manager in Mississauga and remains dedicated to his family and responsibilities, even redoing the flooring in his daughter's Brampton home where he resides.

The grandfather of five grandchildren, was upset at the initial diagnosis, but has been hopeful since starting his chemotherapy.

In the face of this struggle and the poor odds for full recovery, he would love to be around a lot longer to see his youngest granddaughter grow up, Melissa said.

Land trust focuses on core principles

by ROBERT MACKENZIE
Times Staff

The Haliburton Highlands Land Trust increased their funds by more than a third in 2016, thanks in large part to their new charity golf tournament.

The land trust's 2016 financial statement was handed out at their annual general meeting Saturday and showed that their revenue after expenditures had increased to $7,672 in 2016 from $5,031 the year prior.

Treasurer Scott Drurie credited the increase in funds mainly to the land trust's Wild About Nature golf tournament held for the first time last summer. "I think people targeted specific events," Drurie said. "People are more willing to donate when there's an event."

Drurie's words were echoed in the financial statement, which showed that while straight donations were down $4,000 from the year prior, the golf tournament brought in more than $19,000 of new revenue.

"We focused on what we believe to be our core responsibilities: conservation and protection of our properties, community education and outreach and research," board chair Mary-Lou Gerstl said in the AGM's chair report. "We are committed to continue this focus as we go forward and to utilize our own properties wherever possible in an effort to create an increased awareness and understanding of the land trust and what we do."

The trust was also awarded a number of grants in 2016, including $29,000 from Canada 150 funding to go toward three proposed projects, and $116,000 from Ontario's Ministry of Natural Resources and Forestry's OSARS Fund, which will go toward a bat risk assessment, endangered species monitoring and management project over the next two years.

Gerstl discussed many other upcoming events the land trust has planned for this summer, including the second annual golf tournament July 27, a 10-year anniversary celebration of their Norah's Island property July 16 and the upcoming BioBlitz over the June 24 weekend — a 24-hour period of biological surveying at Dahl Forest, which includes guided workshops given by scientists.

Saturday's AGM was the last for Lois Deacon, Chris Whittemore and David Lawrence as part of the trust's board of directors; the former resigned her post while the latter two decided not to seek another term on the board. Members in attendance approved Gerstl to continue her role as board chair for another year.

Treasurer Scott Drurie delivers the trust's 2016 financial report to members at the Haliburton Highlands Land Trust's annual general meeting Saturday. ROBERT MACKENZIE Staff

What the duck

SOME SERIOUS WAVES were created last week when it was announced a $120,000 provincial grant would be used to help rent a giant rubber duck to be brought to Toronto's Redpath Waterfront Festival in celebration of Canada's sesquicentennial anniversary.

And by giant, we're talking about a six-storey rubber duck. A rubber duck taller than any building in Haliburton County and apparently weighing in at more than 13,000 kilograms.

The move certainly ruffled some feathers and raised a number of questions.

Such as, what, for instance, does a giant rubber duck have to do with Canada's 150th anniversary?

Did the giant rubber duck belong to Sir John A. Macdonald? Was it discovered in a B.C. cave by archeologists?

And, of course, why a rubber duck? If you're going to rent six-storey waterfowl to celebrate the country, surely a Canadian goose or loon would be a more obvious choice.

The Opposition had a field day with the situation, lobbing questions about the duck's link to Canadian heritage and calling it a massive waste of taxpayers' money.

And that's the real problem with this whole rubber duck ordeal. It makes it appear the government is not keeping a very close eye on how public money is being spent.

This in a province with a debt of more than $300 billion, where Hydro One bills have soared out of control for years and where a disconcerting portion of the population subsists on minimum wage.

The giant rubber duck has become a shining, yellow symbol of wastefulness, a beacon loudly proclaiming that when it comes to spending, perhaps the government's priorities are heading down the drain.

The latest news in the giant rubber duck saga is that the Dutch artist who created the enormous inflatable duck, called, aptly, Rubber Duck in 2007 is claiming the duck that has been rented in Ontario is a counterfeit; another giant rubber duck, made in the image of the first one.

The artist responsible for Rubber Duck says his creation was never meant to be used for profit.

So, this whole situation may yet become a lame duck.

Still, it highlights, in bright, yellow, that greater attention must be paid to the types of projects that are receiving provincial grant money.

Leaks and other transferable skills

THERE ARE MANY, many, many people who think Donald Trump is a stone cold idiot, but I do not count myself among them. Mostly because I have no proof that he is stone cold.

I will admit his presidency has had its moments, however.

You can't watch it closely without concluding that he appears to be incompetent, racist, sexist, greedy, selfish, cowardly, narcissistic, woefully ill-informed, incredibly dishonest and totally lacking in important things such as intellect, vocabulary, leadership and curiosity. Oh, and he is devoid of any sort of dignity, class, critical thinking skills or moral fibre.

Other than that, he seems completely qualified for the job.

Let's be honest; POTUS is not his thing. And that's OK.

On the positive side, everyone has something they're good at. I happen to think Donald J. Trump might actually make a very good angler.

There are several hints that helped me arrive at this conclusion.

The first is that he is always trying to find a leak. In fact, I cannot think of a day since he has taken office when Trump was not concerned about leaks – and that obsession is one of the hallmarks of a great angler.

As every trout angler knows, finding a leak in your waders is a vital skill that you must master. Unless, you don't mind walking into the coffee shop after you have removed your waders with all the proof needed to start a rumour about your secret fight against incontinence.

Even if you happen to be an angler who is too smart to wade, finding the leaks matter. Heck, if you are in a boat, inflatable float tube or raft, finding those leaks is the difference between a good day on the water and a refreshing swim home.

So the very fact that Trump is constantly trying to find the source of his leaks is certainly evidence that he might indeed enjoy a successful career in fishing, right after he chooses the colouring book for his presidential library.

The second thing that makes me think that Trump has an aptitude for fishing is that he doesn't appear to have any problem with being in over his head. Most times, he actually wades right into those situations.

Eventually, if you take up trout fishing seriously, this is going to happen anyway. And when it does, the attitude he possesses is precisely what is needed. If you can somehow ignore the fact, despite all evidence, that you keep taking steps that float your hat (or unnaturally orange hair), you'll probably not view fishing in a poor light.

The other thing that Trump does that makes me believe he would be a natural angler is that he has an uncanny ability to exaggerate things and use superlatives. Don't forget this is a guy who claimed to have one million people at his inauguration.

You just know a guy like this would tell the best fishing stories ever, which is perhaps the most important angling skill of all. The three-inch chub that Trump catches would quickly turn into a 24-inch rainbow – or be Obama's fault. Better yet, imagine how big any trout would look in his tiny hands.

Yes, he'd make a better angler than a president. He's got everything it takes.

Even so, I would never fish near him. You see, he also seems to attract suckers.

Finding Hal 3

FINALLY, the mystery is solved. It took considerable poking and prodding of the federal bureaucracy but we have found Hal 3. It is a weather site, in fact the only weather site recording daily weather statistics in Haliburton County.

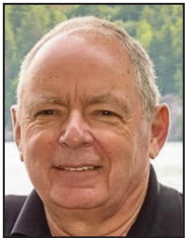

Environment Canada (EC) does not have any weather stations in Haliburton County. Neither do other weather services such as The Weather Network, which feed off EC data and massage it for their own reports.

When you search EC online for Haliburton weather you get forecasts and data from Bancroft, an hour's drive from the centre of Haliburton County.

Haliburton 3 does not do forecasts but provides temperature and precipitation information for days past. If you want to know how much rain fell on the holiday Monday about three weeks ago, it will tell you (almost 15 millimetres, or more than one-half an inch).

I learned of Hal 3 while stumbling around the Internet some years back, but could never find any specific information about it. January past I made it a mission to find out where it was and why its detail is so much better than anything provided by the EC station in Bancroft.

I started with messages to EC in Gatineau, Que. They ignored me. I sent other messages until a human finally replied, telling me to direct my inquiry to the national severe weather centre.

JIM POLING SR.
From Shaman's Rock

"This has nothing to do with severe weather," I shot back. "I just want to know where Haliburton 3 weather is collected."

There was no response. I sent other messages asking if anyone in Environment Canada ever was going to talk to me about Hal 3. No response.

After almost four months of trying to penetrate the thick federal bureaucracy I resorted to a threat. I messaged EC saying it could ignore my requests, but I was certain the federal information commissioner and my local MP would not.

The response was very quick and Hal 3 no longer is a mystery. It is a Cooperative Climate Network (CCN) weather station staffed by a private individual who collects weather data daily and provides it to Environment Canada.

What makes Hal 3 information so much more useful is the word "staffed." A person actually measures the amount of rainfall and snowfall.

In many locations, Bancroft included, EC has automated weather stations that do not measure rain and snow individually. They collect rain and snow together as liquid and report total precipitation in millimetres.

So it is virtually impossible to know how much snow fell on a given day, which seems a bit unCanadian.

Hal 3 however tells us how much snow and rain falls on a given day. For instance, it tells you that on April 6, a day when it both rained and snowed, rainfall was 17 millimetres, and the snowfall totalled 13 centimetres.

The automated stations simply report 30 millimetres of precipitation, which gives no idea of how much snow fell.

The EC bureaucrats, citing privacy laws, won't give the name of the individual collecting weather information at Hal 3. They just say that it is a person operating somewhere at Latitude: N 45° 1' 56.094" Longitude: W 78° 31' 52.014" somewhere near Grass Lake.

They don't tell us anything about the Cooperative Climate Network (CCN) but we can guess it is similar to the Cooperative Observer Program in the United States where more than 10,000 volunteers take daily weather observations and report them to the National Weather Service.

You can find Hal 3 on the Internet by going to http://climate.weather.gc.ca/historical_data/search_historic_data_e.html and doing a search for Haliburton 3.

Most people are content to receive standard weather information provided by any of the weather services on the Internet and have little interest in the details. Some others, like myself, are keenly interested in accurate detail and say thanks to the Hal 3 volunteer, whoever you are.

Here are some interesting facts put together with data from Hal 3:

There were no days last winter with lows of minus 30C or colder.

March had more cold days than December, January or February, but December had more snow (134.4 cm) than January, February and March combined.

There was at least a trace of rain on 18 days in April and 21 days in May.

DVD of the Month

Sing

Buster Moon, a koala, tries to save his foundering theatre by hosting a singing competition. When a typographical error on the poster draws more talent than he ever expected, including a mobster gorilla's son, an egotistical crooning mouse, an overworked housewife and mother of 25 piglets, a punk-rocker porcupine, and a shy teenage elephant, personalities clash as rehearsals ramp up to the big night. Then some bears crash the party, revealing Buster's contest to not be all what it's cracked up to be, and literally bringing down the house. With his theatre career in ruins, will Buster be able to salvage his dreams?

Sing is an animated family film featuring the voices of Matthew McConaughey, Reese Witherspoon, Seth MacFarlane, and Scarlett Johansson. It is available to reserve on DVD at the Haliburton County Public Library.

Getting the scoop in Norland

by CHAD INGRAM
Times Staff

A new ice cream parlour in Norland is ready to serve up deliciousness just in time for summer.

What's the Scoop? Ice Cream and Desserts opened on the weekend of May 24, in the former home of Café Dieme, along Highway 35 at the village's main intersection.

"I bought the building a year ago and sort of slowly chipped away at the renovations," says owner Jay Rose, who pointed out he was going for an old-fashioned kind of aesthetic.

There's black-and-white tile flooring and an old cookstove acts as a coffee bar.

Oh, and there are 24 flavours of ice cream, along with a variety of home-baked goods. Most of the baking is courtesy of Rose's mother.

"She's showing me [how to bake]," he says. "It's mostly her right now."

The shop is open Fridays through Mondays, and Rose has plans to extend the hours once the summertime arrives.

"Come give us a try," he says.

Rose may also transform another area of the building into a fish and chip shop.

Jay Rose is the owner of the new What's the Scoop? ice cream and dessert parlour in Norland. The business is currently open on weekends, but hours will be extended once summer arrives.

Indigodragonfly customers give thousands for flood relief

by JENN WATT
Editor

It took 24 hours for the customers of Indigodragonfly to raise more than $3,300 to help people in Minden get back on their feet after the community was flooded last month.

The local hand-dyed yarn company had helped out when the community was flooded in 2013 by creating a special colourway called "Canoe Up to the Beer Store," said Indigodragonfly owner Kim McBrien. When this year's flooding started, she said the customers were immediately asking her and her spouse and business partner, Ron Evans, about what they could do to help again.

"Many of our customers have been to our studio, attend our annual open house in August, listen to Ron's show on Canoe, and have developed a connection to our home community. So we created a way for them to help again," she said.

On May 26, the company pledged to donate 25 per cent of all sales (both online and in-studio) to flood relief. They also set up a place on their website, www.indigodragonfly.ca, where people could make direct donations. All of the money is going to the Minden Food Bank.

"Ron and I came to Minden to see for ourselves what the town was dealing with. And we kept up to date on the Minden Hills postings about what was happening in terms of the flood, what help was needed and where donations should be directed in order to do the most good," she said. The municipality was directing donations to the Red Cross and the food bank. McBrien and Evans decided to choose the food bank.

McBrien explained that Indigodragonfly already donates regularly, setting aside a portion of every sale that goes to sponsor events or help charity.

"Indigodragonfly is about community, and we define 'community' in three ways: local (because charity starts at home), Canadian (because home doesn't end at the county line) and international, like our customer base (because we're all in this together)," she said.

Remembering Phoenix Acero

by JENN WATT
Editor

Phoenix Acero could strike up a conversation with just about anyone. When he was five years old, he started talking about fresh produce with a couple of 70-year-old women while standing in line with his grandfather at the grocery store. In high school, despite being in Grade 9, he made friends with students in every grade, offering a wide, friendly smile.

"If he was sitting on a park bench and somebody was sitting there, he would talk to them. He could make friends anywhere, anytime," his mother, Dulce, said.

When Phoenix, 14, died suddenly May 14, the loss of his cheerful presence was deeply felt.

Seven hundred people attended his funeral in Haliburton.

"I was surprised at how unaware I was of how many people Phoenix touched in some way," Dulce said in an interview with the paper.

Those who knew him all say the same thing: he was bright and cheerful, friendly and outgoing.

Phoenix was the kind of person you noticed right away.

His best friend Danielle Allison said she first met him at Haliburton Dance Academy's intensive, weeklong summer dance camp.

"I saw him and he was in this floral shirt. And he looked so different and stood out," Danielle said. "He had this vibe of happiness and something you wanted to be around all the time."

She made sure to eat lunch with him on that first day and they talked through the whole break. "We hung out every second for the week," she remembers.

Phoenix was a year younger than Danielle, so when she was in high school and he was still in elementary school, they would hang out on weekends and during the summer.

"When he came to high school [this year] I was so happy. It was so exciting," she said. "He would come up and he'd always call me Dani Lee. He'd scream that at the top of his lungs."

Phoenix had a booming voice – what his mom says was a recently acquired "James Earl Jones voice," which he was "super excited about" – and he knew how to use it.

Grade 11 student Xander Petrie said they would do a call-and-answer through the hallways to each other, hollering as loudly as they could through the mass of students.

"He was a really easy kid to talk to and so cheerful," Xander said. "Always a smile on his face."

"He had that cool swag. He'd walk into a room and it'd be like, that kid's cool."

Xander doesn't remember exactly where he met Phoenix the first time, but they bonded over their love of skateboarding and rap. Xander is an active musician and the Grade 9 student would send him raps he made or perform them for him. The pair were planning to collaborate on a song together.

"When he rapped it was more like a poetic way of putting it out," Xander said.

Xander was asked to be a pallbearer at the funeral, helping to carry the casket adorned with messages and signatures of the ceremony attendees.

"The moment I look[ed] at it, it was like every tiny piece of emotion [came up]," he said. "It was like a river."

Students have been grappling with the loss, said Haliburton Highlands Secondary School vice-principal David Waito.

"The whole school has been affected by it," he said. "He was a very well liked young man and lots of people felt a connection with him."

Students began writing on Phoenix's locker as a makeshift memorial.

"It became a really important piece for the student body in their grieving process," Waito said. "And they wanted to give that to Phoenix's mother as a token and a gift."

Dulce said the locker door is now in her son's bedroom and she's not sure where she will keep it for the long term. Some of the messages prompted her to learn more about her son – some of the inside jokes he had with friends, including about his white Adidas shoes.

"His white Adidas were his world," Dulce said.

Mornings in their home could be like a fashion show, with Phoenix carefully considering what outfit to wear that day to school.

"He really cared about how he looked," she said.

Aside from rap music and skateboarding, Phoenix recently took up basketball, an interesting choice since he wasn't exactly a natural basketball player.

His coach, Gordon Cochrane, said Phoenix was the junior boys' basketball team's most improved player. "He was not athletic [in terms of basketball], but he was a nice young man to have on the team," he said.

"I found him a very pleasant, considerate, courteous, responsible young man."

Phoenix kept trying to improve his game, sometimes worrying he wasn't keeping up with his teammates, Dulce said, but he was determined.

He used money saved up from his summer job to buy a pair of Air Jordans to wear on the court only to have them stolen.

"He was so devastated," she said.

After the funeral, the shoes were anonymously returned to Dulce. She said she'd be giving them to one of her son's best friends on the team.

Dulce is getting through the sudden loss of her oldest child one day at a time. She is surrounded by loving family: her daughter Anabel, parents Carlos and Brenda, sisters Kamala and Melodie and many others. She worries for the students at the school, however.

"Some of them are 14. That's really young," she said. "They don't know how to cope with this and manage this."

Several of Phoenix's friends have contacted her and shared their stories, photos and videos. "They're reaching out to me and that actually helps me to talk to his friends because it gives me little glimpses into his life about some things he didn't always share with me," she said.

Some of his friends started organizing a vigil for him to take place at Head Lake Park in Haliburton on the evening of Saturday, June 24. The event will come four days after his birthday and the students hope it will bring a chance for closure, or at least to grieve together as a community.

For those he was close to, Phoenix continues to be a presence felt in their daily lives.

Danielle said he was planning to come with her to the prom after-party this year, which came a couple of weeks following his death.

"His favourite colour was green and after prom there were green Northern Lights that not many people saw, but a few of us did. I think that was him showing up," she said.

Xander has renamed Phoenix's favourite song after him on the mixtape he released last week, which he will also perform at the vigil. As he moves forward with his career in music, he said Phoenix will be with him.

"When I become a rapper, he'll be with me on those steps," he said.

For Dulce, her son is all around her.

"I feel him all the time. I do. I feel him with me."

Rare London cab taxis around county

Kevin Shea parks his London cab next to his British phone booth at his cottage on Halls Lake. Submitted

by SUE TIFFIN
Times Staff

A ride in a taxi during a visit to London, England, almost 30 years ago was more meaningful than Kevin Shea intended. He ended up bringing the cab home.

Shea, a former broadcasting executive, visited England with his brother in 1988. While waiting for their hotel room to be ready, they decided to take a tour of the city.

“We were no sooner in the taxi, my brother turns to me and says, ‘we have to get one of these,’” said Shea. “Our entire trip changed.”

Shea and his brother headed to Coventry, where the London Taxi Company was manufacturing the iconic black cabs.

“We show up and say, ‘we’re interested in buying two,’” said Shea. “And they say, ‘that’s terrific, but get in line, because you can’t get them into your country.’”

At that time, import laws only allowed the cars into Canada if they were 15 years or older. Undeterred, Shea phoned his friend, a regulatory lawyer in Ottawa, to determine what could be done.

They’re very roomy. There are very few in North America.

— KEVIN SHEA ON HIS LONDON CAB

“I said, ‘there’s got to be a way around this,’” he said.

Shea’s friend called back the next day with good news. He’d discovered that in Britain, the age of a vehicle is stamped on the chassis (the frame of the car), as opposed to the dating process in North American production, which puts stamps in a few different places.

“We went back to the factory and we said, ‘we have an idea,’” said Shea.

The brothers outlined their plan to buy two “wrecks,” and put just the chassis of the old cars through the production line to be fitted with a new body.

“At the factory they said, ‘If you look over there, there’s five different taxis. Sammy Davis Jr. bought those last year and he can’t get them into the States. Maybe he’ll do a deal.’”

So Shea and his brother were able to import two brand new 1988/89 black cabs that were dated as being 1972/73.

“They’re such a unique car,” said Shea. “They’re incredibly roomy. There are very few in North America, and I thought it’d be cool to have it.”

The car is so rare in Canada, that Shea, a Halls Lake resident, has had the opportunity to drive it in remarkable situations.

“I’ve done a lot of fun stuff with it,” he said.

He and his brother escorted Canadian athletes in the cabs into the Air Canada Centre prior to the London Olympics in 2012. The car has been featured in commercials and films, including one starring Ann-Margret, and has been used by the Lieutenant Governor of Ontario during royal visits. Shea has also driven the car in the Haliburton Rotary parade, though he said, “when you drive it through Haliburton, it’s sort of a parade onto itself.”

The car, which seats six, gets a lot of comments, especially from British fans.

“I call it the happy car,” said Shea. “People see it, they all wave and smile – and Brits go crazy.”

He once even had someone try to hail it when he was picking up a friend at a hotel.

“There was a lineup for taxis, so the very first guy in line was saying, ‘it’s mine, it’s mine.’”

Shea is renting the car out by the hour to those in need of a notable car for a special occasion. It’s already been rented for a wedding in Haliburton during the second week of June. In the meantime, when he’s not taking it to the grocery store, it’s parked next to a British telephone box in his driveway waiting for its next chauffeur opportunity.

“My plan is one day for the Queen,” he said.

If you are the Queen, or if you are interested in renting Shea’s London Cab, he can be reached at kevin Shea@rogers.com or 416-886-5110.

Revamped Dorset fitness room reopens

From left, Dorset Recreation Committee chairperson Ruth Lynch, Township of Algonquin Highlands recreation and parks manager Chris Card, Algonquin Co-operative Development Corporation chairperson Jan McDonald, AH councillors Marlene Kyle and Brian Lynch and Reeve Carol Moffatt cut the ribbon to officially re-open the Dorset Recreation Centre Fitness Room on Thursday, June 1 at the Dorset Recreation Centre. The building received upgrades totalling $35,100, which included five new pieces of fitness equipment, new sport flooring, an aerobics area and additions such as mirrors, and greater accessibility and upgrades to the shower room. This project, the Dorset Recreation Centre Fitness Room Rehabilitation, was funded by the federal government ($25,000) through the New Horizons for Seniors Program and the remaining balance by Algonquin Co-operative Development Corporation and the Township of Algonquin Highlands. From June 2 to 11, the fitness room will be open to the public at no charge. Moffatt said this is an example of how the township is constantly looking for funding to re-invest in the community for its residents. /DARREN LUM Staff

Haliburton County supports cellular project

by CHAD INGRAM
Times Staff

Haliburton County council, along with the councils of its lower-tier municipalities, recently passed resolutions in support of the latest project by the Eastern Ontario Regional Network (EORN), a project that aims to fill gaps in cellular connectivity for homes and businesses throughout the eastern portion of the province.

It would require the construction of new communications towers throughout the region, with an estimated price tag of $213 million.

EORN, which is a non-profit organization created by the Eastern Ontario Wardens' Caucus to improve Internet connectivity throughout its jurisdiction, is submitting grant applications to the provincial and federal governments for the project.

Support resolutions from local councils will help in building its business case. Nearly 25 per cent of the area encompassed by the EOWC does not have access to cellular connectivity and, according to EORN, another 28 to 40 per cent of the area has inadequate capacity.

There are cellular connectivity gaps throughout Haliburton County. Some of the most pronounced areas are in Highlands East and Algonquin Highlands, but there are gaps in all four of the lower-tier municipalities.

"Much like the transcontinental railroads were the foundation of North America in the 19th century, as technology evolves, the Internet is what keeps our economy, businesses and households running today," Minden Hills Reeve and Haliburton County Warden Brent Devolin said in a press release.

"Without that connectivity, rural communities in Eastern Ontario will be left behind."

A previous EORN project fell short of its connectivity goal.

Between 2010 and 2015, EORN embarked on a $175-million project that aimed to connect 95 per cent of homes and businesses within its jurisdiction with broadband, high-speed Internet.

That area includes Haliburton County and the 12 other municipalities that comprise the Eastern Ontario Wardens' Caucus, as well as six separated cities including Belleville, Kingston, Quinte West, Gananoque, Prescott and Cornwall.

Haliburton County contributed $500,000 to the initial EORN project.

Rather than connecting 95 per cent of homes and businesses in the region, the initial EORN project connected about 86 per cent of them.

EORN is hoping to begin the new project in 2018.

Chew and chat for charity tempts tastebuds

by SUE TIFFIN
Times Staff

The Highlands Food and Beverage Showcase has it all – food, entertainment, silent auction, even a pickling competition – all while promoting local culinary tourism and raising money for two important causes.

More than 30 diverse, mostly culinary-related vendors from the area are coming to the fourth annual Chew and Chat for Charity event on June 17. Visitors to the event, at Wintergreen Pancake Barn in Gelert, pay one admission for entrance and are treated to samples from local farmers, chefs, bakers, brewers – even baristas.

“Participation has increased this year, for sure,” said Dawson. “There’s coffee, tea, barbecue, pizza, wild edibles – it’s just an amazing array of stuff. You won’t go hungry.”

While guests are mingling and sampling to keep their mouths occupied, entertainment including Fifth Business, the Shout Sisters, and the Highland Scottish Dancers will keep ears and eyes occupied throughout the afternoon. A food competition invites guests to “come pickled” and bring a sample of their own homemade pickled goods for a friendly tasting contest. Meanwhile, a silent auction offers prizes in exchange for the charities supported by the day’s events.

In the past, the event has raised about $4,500 a year from the entrance fee and silent auction donations. This amount is split between two charities – one global, and one local.

The charity supports H.A.V.E. (Help a Village Effort) as their global charity, to help build wells and sanitation equipment in India.

“Here we are sitting in the middle of the greatest freshwater in the world, we have to do something for those who don’t have that,” said Dawson, who is a H.A.V.E. director.

“The basic necessities – freshwater, water to wash hands, have basic hygiene – there are schools without bathrooms – it affects everything when there’s no freshwater.”

Past local charity recipients have been the food bank, hospital and Food for Kids initiative. This year, the YWCA Women’s Centre of Haliburton County was chosen.

“We have a long list, so it’s really hard to decide,” said Dawson. “In the fall when we were doing our planning, the YWCA was in crisis so it was a no-brainer.”

An additional benefit of the event is that it helps promote culinary tourism.

“There’s a need for showcasing what’s in this county, which is amazing, in one spot,” said Dawson. “People can take a sample from here and then later go visit that restaurant that they maybe didn’t know was there. We don’t have a tourism office in town anymore, so when people come to ask where do we eat or what’s a good spot...we need to make food and beverage really accessible.”

The event has received advertising support from the county tourism department and funding from Foodland Ontario.

“The Food and Beverage Showcase is important to our region, as it shows the breadth and depth of the county’s culinary offerings – but also integrates music and the arts,” said county tourism director Amanda Virtanen. “It’s gaining traction and growing each year.”

Additional fundraising events for H.A.V.E. including a walk by ASES students and a walk co-ordinated by local churches will take place later in June.

Admission to the Highlands Food and Beverage Showcase is $50 for a family and $20 for people over 16. Wintergreen Pancake Barn is located at 3325 Gelert Road in Minden. Bring your own plate, bug spray, lawn chair and cutlery anytime from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m.

For more information about the Chat and Chew event, visit highlandsfoodfest.com or call Diane Dawson at 705-286-3202. To learn more about HAVE, visit helpavillageeffort.org.

Active Rest

THE TERM “active rest” sounds like an oxymoron doesn’t it? It is a term used in the fitness industry, and it makes a lot of sense. It is also known as active recovery.

Our bodies do need rest to get stronger, but there is a difference between passive and active rest. Taking the passive route means doing nothing, i.e. sitting on the couch with the remote in one hand and a cold beverage in the other. While this is a good idea for some situations it is not always the best thing to do.

LAURIE SWEIG

Practical Fitness

I experienced the negative effects a few years ago when I took a few days off from daily activities. My body seized up like a car engine running on very little oil. There was back pain, hip pain, and knee pain. There was also the pain of frustration because I was in pain and that made me a pain to be around. You get the idea.

It comes back to the fact that our bodies are meant to move. Period.

The question becomes how much movement is enough to allow our bodies to recover without stiffening up? That, of course, is different for everyone. It is dependent on what you are currently doing not only in your fitness life, but in all aspects of your daily activities.

For some people doing a stretching routine may be best activity to do on a rest day. For others it would be a light weight lifting session or a hike. Swimming is often recommended for runners. It takes gravity away so there is movement without pounding. That allows the joints recover from the stress of the activity.

The bottom line is, listen to your body. Ask yourself questions like: “Am I physically or mentally tired?”, “Does any part of my body hurt?” Answers to those questions will help guide you in planning for your rest.

I believe the best thing we can do for ourselves is get to know our bodies. To do that, we have to tune in to the aches, pains and irritations. Sometimes they are from too much movement, but often they are from not enough. That distinction can be difference between good and poor health.

Something to think about.

Pristine Roofing offers quality work

by SUE TIFFIN
Times Staff

Brodie Upton has worked in construction and as a contractor for years, but a few months ago he decided to use the skills learned in the roofing business and open his own.

Pristine Roofing, located in Minden, started this spring. Upton and his crew specialize in steel and shingled roofs, repairs, soffit and fascia and cedar shake and are fully insured.

“We do good, quality work that’s efficient and clean,” he said. “I guarantee my work.”

Upton said he especially recommends Marathon and Henry Bakor roofing products.

A move to Bowmanville is in the works for Upton, but he won’t hesitate to return to Minden should a need arise.

“If I get calls up here, I’ll definitely do it,” he said. “I’m working all over the place.”

Pristine Roofing is located at 342 Bobcaygeon Rd. in Minden. Call Upton at 905-213-0923 or contact him at pristineroofingco@outlook.com.

VOLUME 1 NUMBER 23

1979 County Budget up 2%

This year's Haliburton county budget of $693,627, only slightly more than two percent higher than 1978's of $677,735, was well accepted by council at the March 21 meeting.

The largest single increase was $9,000 for county roads, which last year received $349,000, not including a $1,334,374.07 subsidy from the Ministry of Transportation and Communication, this year it jumped to $358,000.

Although 1978's budget included $25,000 for a development study, not needed this year, it means 1979's budget is actually increased six percent but still within provincial guidelines.

General government expenditures were budgeted at $71,000, an increase of $8,000 over last year while 1978's actual expenditure was $61,563.55.

Protection to persons and property will account for $2,200 of the budget as the wolf bounty has been increased to $500.

Thirty one thousand, three hundred will be spent on health services compared to last year's $29,000 allotment.

Social and family services account for $142,827 of the budget compared with $130,535 last year. Ninety thousand of this is used for assistance to the Hyland Crest Home for the Aged.

Expenditure for recreation and cultural services amounts to $43,600 paralleling last year's $39,000.

Planning and development dropped dramatically this year with $44,700 contrasting 1978's $65,500, because last year $25,000 was necessary for the planning study which is not needed this year.

The net surplus for 1978 was $2,851.89.

The county's revenue started off with a general support grant of $37,360 compared to last year's $34,064. Land division application fees amount to $20,000 and other revenue including auctioneer licences, rents, bank interest and 'In Quest of Yesterday' book sales and other miscellaneous will make up $16,775.

Community and social services grant and a surplus make the total revenue, other than taxation, $96,936.

Taxation will bring in the other $596,691 to make the total revenue $693,627.

The apportionment of levies for the municipalities is determined by the ratio of the equalized assessment of each municipality to the total equalized assessment of the county.

This year Dysart et al will be contributing the biggest slice, $191,120.12 or 32.03 percent, although it is the only municipality not affected by the 1978 supplementary budget for the planning study.

Anson, Hindon and Minden will contribute $111,521.54 or 18.69 percent.

The Improvement District of Bicroft will be levied $12,411.18 or 2.08 percent.

Cardiff's levy will be $33,355.03 adding up to 5.59 percent.

Glamorgan will contribute $38,128.55 or 6.39 percent while Lutterworth's share is 7.70 percent or $45,945.21.

Monmouth will contribute $38,128.55 or 6.39 percent while Lutterworth's share is 7.70 percent or $45,945.21.

Monmouth will contribute $25,061.02 equaling 4.20 percent. The united municipalities of Sherborne, McClintock and Livingstone are levied $49,048 or 8.22 percent.

Snowdon will contribute $22,196.91 or 3.72 percent and Stanhope's levy is $67,903.44 or 11.38 percent.

County grants $32,000 in 1979

Haliburton county council has granted almost $32,000 to 20 charities and organizations.

The grants, totaling $31,950 compared to 1978's $27,050 were revealed at the 1979 budget meeting on March 21.

The largest single grant, $13,000 goes to the Haliburton Highlands Chamber of Commerce. This is the same amount as the chamber received last year, although the economic development committee, the chamber's subcommittee, is granted $4,000. Also included in the community planning and development grant are Cardiff township information booth, water level control and $3,000 will be granted for the purchase of Haliburton County Tartan.

Recreational and cultural services, including the county fair, guild of fine arts, snowmobile association, Stanhope airport and the Minden library/art centre, will obtain a $7,600 grant. Five hundred dollars of the snowmobile association grant will be used to link the Sherborne area to existing county trails.

Protection to persons and property will be allotted $2,200

Quebec Girls visit Kinmount

It can lead to some very interesting conversations when two girls from Quebec visit two Kinmount girls. Sandra Melfi, 17, left, and Aline Beaudoin, 18, right, both from Sept Iles having been visiting Jennifer Austin, 18, and Susan Phillips (not available for photo) for the past week. The four girls are involved in a student exchange program initiated by the French teacher at Fenelon Falls High School. Jennifer and Susan will be travelling to Sept Iles on May 11 to complete the exchange program.

Contaminated fish in area lakes

Lake trout over 22 inches, caught in St. Nora Lake in Stanhope and Sherborne townships are not to be eaten, according to a recent study by Environment Ontario.

This group issues bulletins on a regular basis to inform the public on the results of fish collected and tested for contaminants such as mercury and PCB.

The 18 to 22 inch lake trout in St. Nora should only be consumed seven times if vacationing for one week, four times a week if staying for two weeks, three meals a week if vacationing in the area for three weeks and not more than three meals a month if consumption lasts more than three weeks.

Smallmouth bass ranging between sizes of 10 to 18 inches in St. Nora should not be eaten more than 10 times a week, five times a week if staying for two weeks, four meals if vacationing for three weeks or three meals a month if eaten over a longer period of time.

Walleye, ranging between 22 to 30 inches, caught in Lake Kashagawigamog should not be eaten under any circumstances. While the same fish between 18 and 22 inches can be eaten 10 times a week if on a week vacation, five meals a week of vacationing for two weeks, four times a week if staying for three weeks or three meals a month if consumption is prolonged.

Also in Kashagawigamog, smallmouth bass between 14 and 22 inches should be eaten on the same basis as 18 to 22 inch walleye.

In Gull Lake, in Lutterworth Township, the only restriction is placed on largemouth bass ranging in size from 18 to 22 inches. These are also to be eaten on the same basis as the 18-22 inch walleye.

The same restrictions are placed on 22 to 30 inch lake trout in Little Hawk Lake in Stanhope township, 18 to 22 inch walleye and 14 to 22 inch smallmouth bass in Paudash Lake, in Cardiff township, 18 to 26 inch lake trout and 14 to 18 inch smallmouth bass in Twelve Mile Lake.

Lake trout between the sizes of 26 to 30 inches in Twelve Mile Lake and walleye, 22 to 26 inches, in Paudash Lake, should only be eaten seven times a week, four times a week for two consecutive weeks, three meals a week for three week vacation and only three times a month for prolonged consumption.

Women of childbearing age and children under 15 should not eat fish that are restricted in any degree.

Minden Bakery to Open Soon

Delicious home baking, submarines, many sandwiches and other quick take out food under one roof almost sounded too good, until now.

Eva and Keith Prior, of Haliburton, will be opening up this business hopefully on Easter weekend, in the building formerly occupied by the Cameo restaurant.

"We'd like to open up a full-scale restaurant but we've got to complete extensive renovations before that would be allowed", Mr. Prior told the Times last week.

The baked goods, home-baked daily, will be supplied by Graham's Bakery in Lindsay who caters to Prior's Haliburton Bakery, Peterborough Civic Hospital and many other locations.

Mr. Prior is planning to operate the takeout on a year round basis.

"I hope the locals will support us, if they do, we're going to try to give them the best year round service," he said.

Plans now stand that the shop will be open from morning to evening but that may be changed later in the year added Mr. Prior.
